Herald's Competition.

JAMES S. CUDDY.

With 125 entries the Bostonians' lyric

One night my meter's thumping
Set my poor heart a-jumping,
And in the big brass chandeller
A spark of light shone out quite clear,
My bill was only twenty—
One ray of light_was plenty,
But I awoke to face the dark
And listen to the meter's bark—

Ah!
Dreaming, dreaming,
Talking in my sleep,
Wandering in dreamland,
Where light is good and cheap,
When we awake
Things are not what they seem,
I thought I saw a light,
But it was just an idle dream.

This was Mr. Goodwin's: once as I softly slumbered, My brain became encumbered;
I saw the city council meet
With kindly words, and actions sweet,
The mayor's smile pervasive,
Seemed to be all persuasive,
And when I left, no Democrat
Was jobless, I can tell you that

O'er and o'er again;
Wouldn't it be lovely
To have some peace, but when?
The day we vote—
We have a brilliant hunch—
We think we're scratching right,
But we elect the same old bunch.

Mr. Cuddy's contribution was: In Pullman car while sleeping,
Through Salt Lake City creeping,
I seemed to see a vision fair,
A union depot on the square;
The trains around me standing.
From east and west were landing.
But I awoke, awoke to swear,
Our box car depots still were there.

Ah!
Dreaming, dreaming,
Talking in my sleep.
Wandering in dreamiand,
Where happiness is cheap;
When we awake,
Things are not what they seem;
I saw a union depot,
But it was just an idle dream.

The rejection of the other lyrics by The rejection of the other lyrics by mo means implies a lack of merit. On the contrary, nearly every one of them was extremely clever. The trouble with many was that they were not good-natured enough. With others the fault lay in the meter. The purpose of The Herald in offering the prizes was to ascertain whether or not any poetic talent could be found in Salt Lake. It believed there was plenty of talent here 6 believed there was plenty of talent here and the results of the competition am-ply justify that belief.

The prize lyrics were so close together of Manager Bacon, with whom the final decision rested. The third prize was almost imperatively necessary because the three lyrics to which the contest finally narrowed all deserved some

With 125 entries the Bostonians' lyric competition for a box and two parquette seats offered by The Herald closed yesterday. Josephr E. Caine, cashier of the Utah Commercial & Savings bank, won the box. The second prize was taken by Tod Goodwin's Weekly, and a special third prize, suggrested by Manager Bacon of the Bostonians as a thoroughly deserved reward of merit, was awarded to James S. Cuddy, clerk in the Salt Lake postoffice. Mr. Cuddy will be given two parquette seats for tonight's performance of "The Screnade," at which time all three of the lyrics will be sung.

A meeting of the Democratic state committee will probably be called for some time next week to decide on the dark of a high tension electric wire, yesterday morning, and before it could be forced from his grasp 16,000 voits had passed through his body. The intensity of the shock can perhaps be mene fully appropriate, where criminals are out to death by cleetrocution, a voltage of from 1,500 to any on its work of promoting the intensity. Denvice two parquette seats for tonight's expected the call will be out at which time all three of the lyrics will be sung.

Nothing has been settled yet as to which time all three of the lyrics will be sung.

Nothing has been settled yet as to which time all three of the lyrics will be later than that of Mr. Caine won with this:
